

Historical sketch

The Kingston Evergreen Cemetery Association is a voluntary group organized on March 4, 1853 to create a private, non-sectarian cemetery to replace the Old Burying Ground which had served the Town since 1717. The KECA (as they are currently known) acquired the original hilly site between Green and Evergreen Streets in 1853, then extended the grounds to the west in 1887 and again to the east in 1895. The landscaped grounds cover almost 18 acres in the center of Kingston

The first interment was Julia D. Parris, widow of Reverend Martin Parris. She died June 17, 1854. Two days later, a great thunderstorm struck during her service. Lightning struck several trees in the Cemetery, dwellings were damaged and the spire of the new First Parish Church was shattered, stopping the clock.<sup>1</sup>

In 1936, Thomas Prince of Oregon left $20,000 to the cemetery for a memorial. The Prince Memorial Chapel was built and dedicated in 1956.

Incorporated in 1942, the Association is governed by a board of directors elected at the Proprietors Annual Meeting each January. The Cemetery's website (<http://www.kingstonevergreencemetery.com>) offers a brief history, by-laws and regulations, a list of trustees and officers, forms, and other information.

A map of the cemetery as of 1941 with lot numbers is available online (<http://kplma.org/maps/doc-18-0004-pc24.pdf>)

Evergreen Cemetery is separate from the Old Burying Ground, a 3.7 acre, Town-owned historical cemetery fronting Main and Green Streets.
