ARCHITECTURAL DESCRIPTION:

The residence at 148 Summer Street was built c. 1920 in the Colonial Revival style. This 5x3 Bay, wood frame, 2 story building sits on a brick foundation. The building is clad with vinyl siding. The hip roof is covered with asphalt shingles. A single, hip roofed dormer pierced the front roof slope. A brick chimney is located at the ridge of the roof line. The entrance is concealed behind a one story enclosed porch which runs along the full length of the facade. This hip roof porch is enclosed with louvered windows. The windows of the main building contain 1/1 vinyl replacement sash.

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE:

This building was built on subdivided land c.1920. The original building form is that of the Colonial Revival style. The enclosed porch and addition of vinyl siding have altered the architectural integrity of this building.
