ARCHITECTURAL DESCRIPTION:

The residence at 234 Brookdale Street was built c.1915 in the Colonial Revival style. This 4x4 bay, wood frame, 2 story building has a cross gambrel roof covered with asphalt shingles. The building is clad with wood shingles. The building has two brick chimneys which pierce the roof at the ridge and one brick chimney on the exterior wall in the rear of the building. The entrance contains a 6-panel wood door flanked by half sidelights with a flat surround. The windows contain 2/1 sash with flat surrounds. The cornerboards are thin and the cornice is boxed. A one story open porch with a shed roof supported by Doric columns wraps around the building. A 1 stall contemporary garage is to the rear of the house.

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE:

This building was built c.1915 and is one of the few large, early 20th century gambrel roof buildings in Kingston. The ownership is unclear but it appears that this may have been built as a summer home and later used as a year-round home. The style is typical of summer estates which became popular in the early 20th century.
