

Horatio Adams (1845–1911)

Horatio Adams was the nephew of Frederic C. Adams. Horatio Adams was one of the original six trustees of the Kingston Public Library and along with his mother Lydia T. Adams donated property on which the Library was built in 1898. Adams had three children, including a son, George Wendell Adams, who worked closely with Mary Baker Eddy in the early years of the Christian Science movement.
